

Reading home learning 15/06/20 - Year Two

Session 1 – The Twits

From the title and the front cover, can you predict type of book this is, fiction or nonfiction? What might it be talking about in there? Write down your predictions in your books.

Read the story with someone in your family, maybe practise using echo reading with them?

Remember – reading the book more than once will build your reading confidence and reading fluency.

Session 2- Reading through the story again, are there any words or phrases you don't know? Look into these words and see if you can find their definitions in a dictionary.

There are many words in this book that are very exciting and will help improve your writing. Out of these words, I'd like you to pick 6 of the ones that you really like and put them into sentences.

Challenge: how many of the words can you fit into one sentence and it still make sense? Share them on Google Classroom with each other too!

Session 3- read through the story one last time, have you been able to acknowledge all punctuation when reading?

Using the text, we'd like you to answer the questions using recall, inference and predication to help you. Share your answers with us on Google Classroom – we'd love to see them!
